Dear Parent/Guardian

We have been given the opportunity to take advantage of a fantastic discounted subscription offer to 'The Economist' magazine for this academic year. For £15, your son will receive 40 issues which works out at just 37 pence a copy. As part of their subscription, as well receiving the weekly print edition, each student will also have unlimited access to Economist.com where they will find every article online plus blogs and debates, plus complete access to the digital edition of the magazine via The Economist apps. Please note that copies will be delivered during term time only and can be collected from Mr Jackson in room E8. The digital access can be set up by either providing their email addresses or by using the customer reference numbers on the delivered copies to activate their digital access on Economist.com.

As each copy normally costs £5.00 this is a great opportunity for your son to read a quality publication which will help them not only in Economics, but in a range of other subjects and preparation for higher education. You can help your son prepare for the challenges ahead – from achieving their target grades at A-level to securing a university place, or the first position in their chosen career – by providing them with 'The Economist' every week.

If you would like you son to take advantage of this subscription offer, then please return the consent slip and cash or cheque for £15 made payable to King Edward VI Aston School to Mr Jackson, no later than Monday 9th October.

Yours faithfully

Mr K. Jackson
Subject Leader for Economics
